‘An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure’. Only a handful realise that, one of the major things that we take for granted in our lives, Health, is not so. ‘Sanitation is more important than political freedom’; with all ears to these words of Mahatma Gandhi, we at N.S.S Hansraj, took up the initiative to generate public awareness on sanitation in the Yamuna Khadar slum area on 7th September, 2019, under the Nutrition Week initiative. A team of volunteers conversed with the people in the area regarding the adverse effects that improper sanitation could infest in their lives, and suggested ways and means to a proper and healthy sanitation. They also touched upon the usage of purified drinking water, which forms a major part of healthy living. The event, which was both educational and inspirational, along with remarkable participation of both volunteers and the people of Yamuna Khadar, turned out to be a huge success.
