Event Description (About 250 Words):

On 17th October 17, 2023, the Finance and Economics Research Cell of Hansraj College conducted a knowledge and development session within the college premises, focusing on the critical topic of "Recession in China." The session provided an in-depth analysis of China's current economic situation, particularly the recessionary pressures it is facing.

Members of the research cell engaged in an internal discussion, examining various dimensions of China's economic slowdown. They evaluated the underlying factors contributing to the recession, such as the real estate crisis, rising debt levels, weakening exports, and the government's stringent "zero-COVID" policies, which have had a long-lasting impact on domestic demand and industrial productivity. The session also considered the ripple effects of China's economic contraction on global markets, particularly its impact on commodity prices and trade relations.

Participants explored potential recovery strategies, such as increased government spending, reforms in key industries, and steps to revive consumer confidence. They critically discussed how China's slowing economy could affect global supply chains, foreign direct investment, and the geopolitical landscape.

Overall, the session was an insightful examination of the Chinese economy's present challenges and its potential future trajectory. It fostered critical thinking and enhanced the research cell's
