Computers are an important constituent of the modern life today. The strong adherence of technology and normal goings-on of the normal being is irrefutable. Hit by the same thought, we hosted a "Computer Literacy Session" on 8 September, 2019 for the young curious minds living in the Yamuna Khadar slum area. The turnout of the children raring to learn was indeed encouraging for our volunteers. The basics of computer system handling, communication, impact of computers in our daily lives and other basic computer functions such as mailing techniques and making a word document were discussed. What made the day more gratifying for our volunteers was the ardent desire to learn with which the children participated and tried their hands on the computer systems. We at N.S.S. are in constant bracing of the idea of technology and its minions. A person who's not equipped in computers today would actually find himself at a serious loss of ability, it is thus we will always look for future opportunities to conduct such sessions and help more and more people benefit from this age of technological wonders.
