The Women Development Cell of Hansraj college, university of Delhi, organised a field trip to Mandawara village, Bulandshahar , Uttar Pradesh on March 16 ,2024. The team was accompanied by professional doctors for a health survey to be conducted in the village. The aim of this field trip was to ensure that proper yet affordable medical aid is being provided to the rural areas. With the aid of the professional doctors, the team of WDC organized medical checkups for the local people, and guided them to a better and healthier lifestyle.

The field trip included a survey, conducted by the volunteers to record the issues faced by the local population at Mandawara village. The survey included issues ranging from availability of healthcare facilities, proper education and awareness generation about diseases, sanitation and hygiene. The required data was collected with precision to ensure that the problems faced by the rural people reach the authorities and necessary actions are taken.

Furthermore, the team of WDC also organised a pad distribution drive. The stigma attached to menstruation, especially in rural areas may lead to neglect of hygiene, and non-availability of proper menstrual products. Through the pad distribution drive, the team generated awareness about menstrual health and the issues that can arise due to lack of care and hygiene.
