Teachers' Feedback Report (2023-24)

The Teachers' Feedback Report for the Academic Year 2023-2024 aims to evaluate the perspectives of faculty members regarding curriculum development, design, and its alignment with academic and professional objectives.

The report focuses on key aspects of curriculum development, including:

1. Freedom to Suggest and Modify the Syllabus
2. Contribution to Curriculum Development
3. Relevance and Balance: Evaluating the syllabus' balance between theory and application and its alignment with course objectives.
4. Resource Availability: Assessing the quality of resources available for teaching the syllabus.
5. Employability and Contemporary Design: Understanding whether the curriculum design supports employability and contemporary learning outcomes.

A significant portion of teachers reported satisfaction with their ability to propose, modify, and suggest changes to the syllabus through appropriate forums. However, a smaller segment expressed concerns about limited opportunities to contribute. Many teachers indicated active participation in syllabus and curriculum development, with a notable number rating their involvement as "Agree" or "Strongly Agree". A majority of teachers agreed that the course curriculum is well-designed, relevant, and balanced between theory and practical application, effectively addressing course objectives and emerging needs in the field. Teachers largely agreed that high-quality resources are available for syllabus implementation, although some respondents suggested scope for further improvement in this area. While many teachers appreciated the curriculum's contemporary design and its focus on employability, a small group indicated the need for more emphasis on skills development and career-oriented modules.

Below are the 9 stacked bar graphs that summarize teacher feedback across all curriculum development questions. Each bar represents a question, with responses such as Agree, Strongly Agree, Satisfactory ratings given, Disagree, and Strongly Disagree displayed proportionally.
